the case. Another would be that he was afraid it would affect his brother's chances for a Federal office.

The counsel for Miss Pollard got the idea that the Breckinridge people were working a notarial boycott on them. They were urged to go to Frankfort and get a special attorney commissioned to take their depositions.

NS. This threw them behind. When, therefore, the Breckinridges proposed to have the depositions ruled out on a technicality, the lawyers for Miss Pollard wereignant. They referred to the course of defense regarding this Lexington matter "chicanery." This particular expression made use of by Mr. W. G. Johnson of

Mr. Johnson was winking through the way to the door, Shelby barred his way said:

You have insulted me, sir; I must have asation, sir."

Well, sir," replied Mr. Johnson, stopping looking at Shelby with great dignity.

Page was terribly excited, and not waiting for further reply landed a blow on Johnson's face. Before the latter could retaliate, other attorneys in the case, assisted by deputy marshal, sprang between the combatants and prevented further hostilities. At a time it looked as if a general fight would be the result, each of the parties drew the source of endless troubles for him, turned up at the City Dispensary this morning with a badly battered countenance and a correspondingly sad tale of woe.

He looked like he had passed through a mangle machine with a buzz-saw attached. He said he had been in a fight with a man named "Red" on the street, and that he had been badly beaten. He said he had been in the hospital for a week, and that he had been discharged yesterday. He said he had no money, and that he had no one to turn to for help. He said he had been in the hospital for a week, and that he had been discharged yesterday. He said he had no money, and that he had no one to turn to for help.

one could plainly see that the indomitable spirit of Tom Goabout was still alive and undaunted. It was not the "cock's blarion" or "the watch dog's honest bark," however, that lured Tom into the trap this time, but that more alluring lure, the light that lies in beauty's eyes.

According to Tom's story, as told to Dr. G. H. he had been casting coy glances at a fair maiden, much to the distrust of his father and his gang, who declared "that er was gittin' too upshin."

After warning him to desist, but his soul aflame and love madly impelled him on, the conspirators met and Tom's doom was sealed.

Novelties of the Season Displayed at Local Stores.

Openings at Famous, Nugent's, Sonnenfeld's and Fuchs's.

ALL THE ESTABLISHMENTS DRESSED IN BRIGHT HOLIDAY ATTIRE.

Most Beautiful Styles in Millinery Goods and Cloaks Ever Exhibited in St. Louis—Come to the Dainties on Which the Feminine Eye Can Feast at These Trade Palaces—Throng Visit All the Stores.

"All roads lead to Rome," was the old adage, and the same may be paraphrased to-day to read that "all streets lead to the great millinery centers," which, garlanded with smiles and adorned by the latest fashions, have been drawing since early morning great throngs of visitors eager to note the changes in styles and try the picturesque effects in hats and coats and capes planned in the foreign fashion emporiums. In many respects the spring styles differ materially from those of the past winter, and the admiration for flaring styles, both in hats and collars and capes and coats, remains unabated, and these changes must be seen to be appreciated. Never has there been more favor than this season. Never has black seemed more desirable, white at the same time the color tones have never been more brilliant and beautiful, many new shades having been introduced for the spring to vie with the flowers.

Famous.

The opening of the new millinery department in this well-known establishment presented more than the usual attractions, for after the second section by fire it has been removed from the second to the ground floor, where most picturesque quarters have been provided for the crowning beauties of a ladies' toilet. Passing down a long aisle, lined on either side by flowers and jewelry and scarves and untimely hats, one reaches finally a large grotto at the back, the sides and roof fretted with dark green, the rough points touched with crimson, and all illuminated with red electric lights, which seem to be the reflection from the glowing fire beneath, over which a kettle is suspended from three old bayoneted muskets which did good service in the civil war. On the wall near by is arranged a bride with strings and wigs. It is very artistic and designed to accentuate the little white and gold drawing-room into which the bride is to be introduced. The bride is a very attractive figure, dressed in white, with white ribbons and white and gold furniture, richly upholstered, give a luxurious air to the little retreat where mirrors are provided for the fair ones to try the effects of the stylish and dainty chapeaux and bonnets offered for their inspection. The shapes this year are of more moderate proportions, the crowns generally low. Sometimes are straight and others convoluted, but they are all picturesque and becoming. Flowers and ribbons are used in greater and more beautiful than ever, and there is usually a lowering effect in their coloring. The new styles are again in favor and large bows of moire with lace ends, or scarves, or collars, or shawls, are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue.

Sonnenfeld's.

Have their "opening" to-day, as is attested by the throngs outside, who stand admiringly before their large show window, which is in exquisite dress for the grand occasion, a setting of green, with canopies and garlands and groups of palms, making a charming background for an exquisite cross made of fragrant Easter lilies, than which nothing could be more effective and beautiful. Within everything is bright and attractive. Gay-colored ribbons, handkerchiefs, gloves, fans, all of the accessories the toilette tastefully displayed from the passageway to the white and gold millinery parlors at the back, which have been greatly enlarged and presents a most attractive appearance to-day, garlanded with white and gold and green, and with plants, making a most tasteful setting for the triumph of the millinery art, which are lavishly displayed on all sides. Myriads of mirrors reflecting the beauties not only of the hats, but of the faces of the fair ones who are trying them, and the new styles are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue.

Fuchs's.

The ladies always expect something marvelous from the tasteful display of A. H. Fuchs's "opening," nor are they disappointed. In no former season has the corner of Broadway and Lucas held so many dainty novelties. The new styles are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue.

Nugent's.

Has his windows most charmingly arranged to display these spring effects, and the artistic effect produced draws the attention of every passer-by. In the center of the large double show window is a bed of geraniums in three colors, so natural that the butterflies might have been seen over them; and among the palms grouped about them are placed here and there exquisite hats and bonnets, looking among the palms like tropical fruits of gay plumage, while two beautiful alabaster pedestals hold the most artistic trifles of the milliner's art. Following the crowd which pushes its way past silks of every hue and brilliant shawls and dress goods of every description, past fluttering ribbons and laces and handkerchiefs and fans and jewelry, past everything to the elevator which leads to the upper story, which is the linen and cloak departments, there one is delighted with the elaborate preparations made for this room. The new styles are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue. The new styles are again in vogue.

One of the extreme novelties is a little gilt bonnet, with pink roses and a jet ornament in front, the side back trimmed with a rosette of light blue velvet and black velvet ties. A white square crown, of filtered lace, with a very simply trimmed with a rosette of black satin antique, yellow and black satin antique, roses to face in the hair, making a stylish bonnet or toque. A novelty in the way of an evening hat is a jet bandeau without a crown, trimmed with a black ribbon, which is the predominating shade of this season, and exquisite violets and a black ribbon. One of Helitz-hat, made entirely of black moire, and is trimmed with variegated geraniums and cut jet-rings which is one of the greatest novelties of the season.

Mme. Jones is represented by an ultra stylish hat, made of a black velvet, trimmed with a jet-rings, extremely broad brim, made of cream lace and cupid wings. With this hat there is a pretty little collar of black moire, giving the same broad effect of these are expensive, of course, but the same effects may be obtained in cheaper goods at the fashionable millinery stores.

A handsome cape of black moire with a black velvet collar and a black velvet tie, with lace, a shoulder frill of the velvet and lace. A Parisian jacket is of broadcloth, heavily braided all over with a short basque skirt of moire matching the large moire skirt, which is a very new style. There are some very pretty things. One of the newest is the full round skirt, Prince Albert coat, made up in all shades. The serviceable Tuxedo suits are also shown in great variety. To be worn with vest or vest effects. They range in prices from $10 to $20. There are also some very stylish suits with double skirts. These are but a few of the handsome things picked out from the immense stock of suits and outer garments carried by this house.

The lovely effects in black and colors must be seen to be appreciated. One confection of black and colors must be seen to be appreciated. One confection of black and colors must be seen to be appreciated. One confection of black and colors must be seen to be appreciated.

Children's hats have been very stylish this year. A broad-brimmed, openwork hat with a large bow of moire ribbon, with a cluster of daisies. A large bow of moire ribbon, with a cluster of daisies. A large bow of moire ribbon, with a cluster of daisies.

Another stylish chapeau is a large black hat, with a large bow of moire ribbon, with a cluster of daisies. A large bow of moire ribbon, with a cluster of daisies. A large bow of moire ribbon, with a cluster of daisies.

Michael Torrey, formerly a saloon-keeper of Broadway, who now resides on the Rock road near the Belt crossing, was held for the Grand-jury by Justice Wilson to-day on the charge of attempting to kill James Johnson of St. Louis, a well-known gambler. Michael Torrey, when Johnson reached his home, found Torrey with his step-mother, Mrs. Lizzie Johnson, a flight opened, and it is said both men fired shots from their revolvers. In the house, Johnson was struck in the head, slightly injured, while the ex-saloon-keeper was not hurt. Torrey claimed Johnson fired shot, presumably at him, as soon as he entered the house.

Case in which Julius Rivera, a St. Louis architect, sued the Missouri Milling Co., for $1,000, is on trial to-day in the City Court. The company is indebted to him for the drawing of plans for a hotel in the city.

Republicans Will Miss Senator Sherman in the Tariff Fight.

The Famous Statesman May Soon Retire From Public Life.

His Last Speech Made in Defense of Physicians' Warning.

Impaired Health and Advancing Years Preclude His Entering the Lists in the Coming Election in the Senate-McKinley Has Come Between Him and the Hopes of His Life-A Long Record in National Politics.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.—The Republicans are likely to be deprived of the very valuable services of Senator Sherman in the approaching tariff fight. Poor health will prevent him from taking the active and important part that naturally would be assigned him. Mr. Sherman attended the meeting of the Senate Finance Committee yesterday afternoon, but remained only a short time. He was clearly not in physical condition to attend to business, and his colleagues on the committee, Democrats as well as Republicans, thought he had acted imprudently even in driving to the Capitol. He will probably not be in the Senate again until Thursday, when he hopes to be able to attend and record his vote against the seigniorage bill.

Mr. Sherman, never a robust man, has been losing flesh of late and is now quite feeble. His voice is weak and his manner listless. He is under the care of a physician, who advised against the speech of Thursday last. The subject, however, was one in which Mr. Sherman has a recognized authority and the threat of the immediate passage of the seigniorage bill through the Senate that day induced him to disobey his physician's instructions. The effort taxed him severely and he has spent the time since in his room at home.

It would surprise nobody here if Mr. Sherman should decide to leave the Senate and public life altogether. Several reports have gone out since his last election ascribing to him the intention of resigning his office and spending the remainder of his days in quiet. He is wealthy and supports a handsome establishment here and another at Mansfield, O. McKinley has come between him and all hope of the presidency, and since then his general interest in affairs has appeared to wane. Nothing but an attack on the sound money system of the country, which he assisted in re-establishing after the war, ever brings him to the front in debate now. The tariff being a kindred subject was expected to appeal to his old-time leadership, but he is no condition to respond, and the battle is likely to be fought without him, or at best with him in the role of a sympathetic spectator only. Although a Republican and a strong party man, he commands the respect of his opponents and the admiration of all men for his extraordinary genius as a financier. He has served his country long and faithfully, and is prominent entirely through his own efforts.

His first appearance in national politics was as a delegate to the Union Union of 1848 as a supporter of Gen. Taylor for the Presidency. During the political excitement of 1854, which followed the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, he became a candidate for Congress from the Thirteenth Ohio District, and was elected, in a campaign in which he was aided by the aid of Whigs, Democrats and Free Soilers. He was subsequently re-elected to the House of Representatives, and served in the thirty-sixth, thirty-seventh and thirty-eighth Congresses, and in 1862 and 1863 he was the Republican candidate for Speaker of the House of Representatives. The contest was a lively one, but Mr. Sherman was defeated after a six weeks' struggle. Mr. Pennington of New Jersey being elected. During the thirty-sixth Congress, Mr. Sherman was Chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, previously having served on the Committee on Naval and Foreign Affairs, and gained distinction as a member of the latter when he was elected to the position of Secretary of the Treasury in President Lincoln's Cabinet. Mr. Sherman was a member of the Committee on Pacific Railroad and Judiciary, and as the President of the House of Representatives ever since 1862. He will be 71 years old on the 10th of May.

HAWAIIAN SUGAR.

Effect of the Proposed Abrogation of the Reciprocity Clause of the Treaty.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The indications point to a spirited debate in the Senate over the clause in the Senate tariff bill, inserted by the Finance Committee, providing for the abrogation of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty of 1897 and the subject is already beginning to attract attention on both sides of the chamber. This treaty provides for a general exchange of the products of the two countries free of duty and includes sugar as the principal article. The Hawaiian Islands, the United States in turn being permitted to export agricultural implements and other machinery and manufactures of woolen and cotton textile fabrics as well as a great variety without the payment of duty. It also contains a provision that no other foreign Government shall have the right to import sugar in any harbor in the Hawaiian Islands. There are a number of Senators on the Democratic side who will object to the clause, and it is believed that the Republican party in the Senate will be almost solid in its opposition. Already objection is heard, not only because the termination of the treaty would deprive the United States of a valuable privilege in the island, but because also of the fact that the action contemplated would be a serious blow to the sugar planters of the islands, whose business, it is contended, is dependent absolutely upon maintaining free commerce with the United States.

The clause was inserted as a concession to the sugar interests of this country, whose friends in the Senate will exert their influence to have it retained.

During 1898, 288,017,999 pounds of sugar and 6,735 gallons of molasses were imported from Hawaii. The Senate bill would, if the treaty should be abrogated, bring a revenue of $2,000,000 to the Treasury amounting to $2,000,000.

The Santa Fe's Out.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 12.—W. F. White, passenger agent of the Santa Fe, has notified the local agents here that he has served notice on the Western Passenger Association that on and after March 15 the rate to the Missouri River from Chicago will be 20. This is a cut of 25 cents from the present rate and is effective west-bound only.

Considerably surprised was evinced at the meeting of the Building Committee of the school board last Friday evening when Director James E. Lacey read a letter from Prof. George S. Martin, Principal of the Oak Hill School, in which he said, among other things:

"In reply to inquiries as to the efficiency of Mrs. Mahan, the janitress at this school, I must say that her work is satisfactory, either as to housekeeping, or that it is never as bad as during my term. I receive frequent complaints from teachers, but as my former position has been nearly equal, I have said nothing, and as the teachers will not venture to speak to Mrs. Mahan on such matters as to her efficiency, I have said nothing."

There was surprise because the members of the Building Committee had read in the school board of Feb. 12 an interview had with Prof. Martin, in which he answered an inquiry concerning Mrs. Mahan's efficiency and the character of her work by saying: "It has always been satisfactory." He also said he should have been dismissed except to put her place at the disposal of someone else. This interview and the resulting investigation caused the board to refer the recommendation for Mrs. Mahan's discharge back to the Building Committee.

A reporter for the Post-Dispatch called upon Prof. Martin yesterday afternoon and called his attention to the two statements so widely at variance with one another. Prof. Martin was asked what had caused such sudden change in his judgment of Mrs. Mahan's work. The question was very embarrassing to Prof. Martin. The latter said he had not changed his opinion and gave the following version of the former interview, which is given verbatim at length: "The reporter asked me had I made any complaint, and I told him I had not. He then asked if I had any complaints to make, or something of the kind, and I told him I had not. The reporter then asked me to make a complaint to the board, and I told him I did not do so. I did not do so because I was a member of the board, and I did not do so because I was a member of the board, and I did not do so because I was a member of the board."

MRS. E. S. HULL'S CASE

Called in Court and Continued—Alton News and Notes.

ALTON, Ill., March 12.—The trial of Mrs. E. S. Hull, who was arrested Saturday for obtaining lodging at Hotel Madison by false pretenses, came up before Justice Brandegee yesterday afternoon. Levi Davis, Jr., was attorney for Mrs. Hull and secured a continuance of the case until Friday afternoon. Mrs. Hull failed to secure bond, and she has been placed at the Hotel Madison, under the care of Officer Hayes. The body of the bridge watchman, Chas. Casper, has not yet been recovered, although many have been dragging for it ever since he disappeared. Casper's brother has arrived from Winona, Minn., and has offered a reward of $25 for the recovery of the body. The bridge watchman still enters the belief that he is dead.

FOR $3,000 DAMAGES.

G. J. Webb, Jr., Files Suit Against the Village of Venice.

VENICE, Ill., March 12.—Geo. J. Webb, Jr., has filed a suit against the village of Venice for $3,000 damages for breach of contract in refusing to allow him to carry out his contract for the improvement of the Venetian road last November. The board had accepted Webb's bid of 25 cents per yard for the filling, but a dispute afterwards arose as to the amount of yards required for the improvement. Webb claims that he was entitled to $3,000 damages for the breach of contract.

REAL ESTATE NEWS.

The Germania Building More Houses on West Olive Street.

Business in real estate circles to-day was quietest regards sales, although there was a great deal of inquiry for property.

T. H. & C. B. Gerhart broke ground to-day for four six-room flats on the north side of Olive street, just west of Springfield avenue. The buildings will be of sawed Bedford stone and buff-colored brick and will be finished in hard wood. The loggia will be wainscoted in white Italian marble and the halls of the entrance. The buildings will occupy a lot 42x120 feet and will put these gentlemen in possession of Grand Avenue Olive street west of Grand avenue.

The Blackwelder-Holbrook Real Estate Co. Union and Page avenues, fronting 208 feet 9 inches on the corner of Union and Page avenues, for $10,000, from Wm. L. Baisan to Thomas H. O'Neill. Mr. O'Neill has plans for a two-story brick building to cover 42x120 feet of the property at the corner of Union and Page avenues, and to build a grocery store on the lot on the second floor.

John J. Donovan Real Estate Co. report the sale of 2,071 Minerva avenue, an eight-room, stock brick dwelling with 2x120 feet of ground for $14,000 to Wm. Hambley to Mrs. M. J. Farrell.

Robert H. Koenigsberger reports the sale of No. 1815 Nebraska avenue, nine-room dwelling with 2x120 feet for ground, for $7,000 from Joseph P. Wray to Louis Wray.

Anderson J. Matthews Dying of Injuries They Caused.

RETIRED REAL ESTATE DEALER, 77 YEARS OF AGE, RUN DOWN.

He Was Thrown in the Air by the Shock of the Collision, and Fell Senseless, But the Human Brutes Did Not Stop in Their Wild Career—Can Be Identified.

Anderson J. Matthews, a retired real estate agent and man of property, lies at his home, 1009 Chouteau avenue, at the point of death, the result of the brutal carlessness, or worse, of two unknown men. Last Tuesday Mr. Matthews was knocked down and had his left hip broken by these men, who then in utter indifference drove on without even so much as stopping to inquire the extent of the injury they had caused the old gentleman.

Mr. Anderson is 77 years old, and for some time has not engaged actively in business. He has considerable property and spends his time in looking after it. His office is on Eighth near Pine street.

Last Tuesday afternoon the old gentleman left his office to go down to 736 South Fourth street, a building which he owned, to see how the painters were getting along with their work. He stood across the street examining it, and he thought he saw a narrow strip which needed another coat of paint; so he went over to the right, to the place of Codding, who had charge of the work, to come out and look at it.

The two men, who were driving a car, came to the west side of Fourth street, within a few feet of the old gentleman, and then they drove on, and discussed the question, there being room enough for a team to pass between the car and the old gentleman, who was crossing the tracks, and no cars were passing, so that all the rest of the street was clear.

PROVE DOWN ON HIM.

Mr. Anderson pointed out the defect to the painter and the latter started across to the building again. He heard no sound of approaching wheels. Just as he got between the two tracks, perhaps ten feet apart, the car came down upon him. One of the men, who was driving, saw the old gentleman and he thought he saw a narrow strip which needed another coat of paint; so he went over to the right, to the place of Codding, who had charge of the work, to come out and look at it.

Mr. Anderson pointed out the defect to the painter and the latter started across to the building again. He heard no sound of approaching wheels. Just as he got between the two tracks, perhaps ten feet apart, the car came down upon him. One of the men, who was driving, saw the old gentleman and he thought he saw a narrow strip which needed another coat of paint; so he went over to the right, to the place of Codding, who had charge of the work, to come out and look at it.

The two men, who were driving a car, came to the west side of Fourth street, within a few feet of the old gentleman, and then they drove on, and discussed the question, there being room enough for a team to pass between the car and the old gentleman, who was crossing the tracks, and no cars were passing, so that all the rest of the street was clear.
